WE'RE FOR AMERICA®AMERICANS

ONE of the strange things in connection with the free silver craze is the positive refusal of Democrats to either see or confess that the sole cause of our National ills is the lack of revenue, brought about by the murder of the McKinley Bill. Restore the main features of that Tariff and the trouble will be ended.

IT is true, as General BOYNTON says, and the fact is one of great significance. that the American people have the most honest government in the world. The public business is transacted with less waste and defalcation than any kind of private business, and changes of parties make no difference in that respect.

THE Rome (Ga.) City Council first offered for sale a 5 per cent. currency bond, and finding no demand for such security withdrew it and effered a 4+ per cent. gold bend, which was readily taken by a New York Insurance Company. If this is the effect of only threatening a 50-cent-dollar currency what would be the condition of affairs should the dream of the silverites actually materialize?

THE Louisville Post was the one influential Democratic paper that refused to support pwat HARDIN because of his free silver heresy, and it now says, referring to the recent silver shower, aided by the votes of twenty-five thousand Populists and anarchists, the dishonest dollar carried the day in Kentucky. Already they are beginning to ask, why put fifty cents in a dollar when wood pulp paper is so much less valuable?

EVERY now and again the American people give way to a "craze." Within the past thirty years we have had the "greentack"fever, the "Granger" fraud, the "Popplist" fake, the"Free-trade" fad, and now the country is in the throes of the "Free Silver" folly. And it is disgusting to observe the alacrity with which former sound money leaders are jumping into the silver band-wagon, for the sole purpose of floating along on the popular

CLAY'S DISAPPOINTMENT.

His Defeat for the Presidential Nom ination in 1889.

J. B. Bishop in Century.

The Whig Convention of 1889 was held in a New Lutheran Church in Harris burg, Pa., and it is a safe assumption that never before or since has a house of God been made the scene of se much and so adroit political maneuvering as went on there for the purpose of preventing the nomination of Henry Clay for the Presidency. The chief manipulator was Thurlow Weed, who appeared there as the friend of Governor Seward, and the future member of the pewerful firm of Seward, Weed and Greeley. This firm, was, indeed, the outcome of the ensuing campaign. Greeley was at the convention-little dreaming that the campaign which was to follow would give him the opportunity for developing the qualities which were to make him the first editor of his time, and lead to the foundation of great newspaper to be forever linked indissolubly with his name. Weed went to the convention with the determination of defeating Clay. He says in his "Autiblography" that he had the New York delegation instructed to keep it from Clay, his real candidate being Harrison. He entered into an agreement with friends of Webster, on the way to Harrisburg from New York City, to act together for Clay's defeat. Webster was in Europe at the time, and had sent word to his friends declining to be a candidate, primarily because of Weed's refusal to support him. After detailing these facts, Mr. Weed goes on to say that, on reaching Harrisburg, "we found a decided plurality in favor of Mr. Clay," but that, 'in the opinion of the delegates from Pennsylvania and New York, Mr. Clay

Weed admits a bargain in favor of Harrison with the friends both of Webster and of Scott, and says the "final vote was intentionally delayed by the friends of the stronger candidate (Harrison) for 24 hours" in order to placate the angry friends of Clay, "whose disappointment and vexation found excited expression." Greeley makes frank admission, in his "Recollections of a Busy Life," as to the plot, by saying that the parties to it, chiefly Weed, "judged that he (Clay) could not be chosen, if nominated, while another could be, and acted accordingly, adding, "If politics do not meditate the achievement of beneficent ends, through the choice and use of the safest and most effective means, I wholly misapprehend them." This somewhat Jesuitical view did not strike Clay and his friends as an adequate justification of the methods by which an admitted majority of the Convention had been prevented from express ing its will. John Tyler of Virginia, one of Clay's most ardent friends in the Convention, was so overcome with grief at Harrison's nomination that he shed tears and after several unavailing efforts to get some one else to take the nomination for Vice-President, Tyler was named for it, his tears having convinced the con vention that the placing of so devoted a friend of Clay on the ticket would go far to heal the wounds that the methods of the convention had caused.

bounded. He had been assuming in the Senate a lofty indifference to the Presidency, his famous saying, "I would rather be right than be President," having been made public only a short time be fore the convention met. There was nobody in the Senate at that time of suffi ciently nimble wit to think of the biting retort which speaker Reed many years later made to a Congressman, who for the thousandth time was strutting about in Clay's cast-off garments: "Don't give yourself the slightest uneasiness; you'll never be either." But Clay had given himself great uneasiness, for he was most desirous of the nomination. He had been a candidate eight years earlier, when he had no chance of election, and he believed firmly now that if nominated he could be elected. When the news from Harrisburg reached him in Washington he lost all control of himself. "He had been drinking heavily in the excitement of expectation," says Henry A. Wise, who was with him. "He rose from his chair, and walking backward and forward rapidly, lifting his feet like a horse stringhalted in both legs, stamped his steps upon the floor, exclaiming. 'My friends are not worth the powder and shot it wou'd take to kill them. It is a diabolical intrigue, I know now, which has betrayed me. I am the most unfortunate man in the history of parties-always run by my friends when sure to be defeated, and now betrayed for a nomination when I, or any one, would be sure of an election." "

Clay's rage at the outcome was un-

Mrs. A. T. Root Says She Saw Walling, Jackson and Pearl There.

Detective McDermott Identifies Pearl's Belongings Found in Walling and Jackson's Room—Walling Admitted Advising Jackson of Medicines.

NEWPORT, My., June 8 -The deputy clerk threw the valles and bloody garments of Pearl Bryan at the feet of the state's attorneys Saturday morning. With Detective Jack McDermott in the oak witness chair, the trial of Alonzo Walling for his life was resumed. McDermott answered questions positively. For a time the attorneys kept him busy identifying Pearl Bryan's belongings found in Walling and Jackson's room. Attorney Shep-herd examined two handkerchiefs in the lot, and threw them back to Attorney Hayes. They went floating through the air. The solemn scene in Epply's undertaking establishment, when Walling and Jackson were taking to view Pearl Bryan's corpse, was brought to view again by the state. McDer-mott was present when Walling was accused of the murder, and the prosecution sought to show Walling's conduct.

Police Superintendent Deitsch was the nex witness. He answered the questions with military precision. In conversation in the chief's office Walling told Deitsch that he had met Pearl Bryan on the last Wednesday after noon of her life at Fourth and Race streets Jackson sent him there. Deitsch said that Walling admitted having advised Jackson to give Pearl Bryan ergot of rye; that he knew she was coming to the city; that he did not know what had become of her.

Walling, Jackson and Pearl Bryan were seen together in Hayden's restaurant the Thursday night before the murder. The entirely new testimony of Attorney A. T. Root in the Walling trial late Friday afternoon was to this effect Had the prosecution called Mrs Root instead of her husband to the witness stand, her evidence would have been even more sensational. She would have sworn that it was the Friday night of the murder when she and her husband saw Pearl Bryan in the company of Walling and Jackson in Hayden's restaurant. This testimony would have carried the connection of the girl with her believed murderers down to a later time than any other witness, save Coachman Jackson has fixed. "It was Friday fight, and not Thursday, as my husband thinks," says Mrs. Root, "when we saw the three young people sitting in the restaurant. I am able to fix the night because of a party which was given that Friday even-ing on our side of the river. My two daughters attended, and I think my husband and I hastened home in order that I might help them could not carry either of those states, and complete their arrangements. This was the party which Judge Helm's son attended. After the party the young man says he crossed the Newport Bridge in his father's carriage. Attorney Root did not retire that night until after two o'clock. From his residence he had a good view of the Newport bridge. As he looked out of the window, waiting for the young people to return from the party, he says he saw many carriages crossing the bridge.

THE MINNESOTA STORM.

Damage Fully $300,000.—The Loss of Life Not Known

St. PAUL, June 8.-Reports received in St. Paul up to 11 o'clock Sunday night indicate that the damage done by the great storm will reach fully $300,000. The loss of human life is not yet known, but three people are known to have perished. These are M. A. Castleton, of Ashland; E. H. Hunter, of Adrian, and Moses Chadwick, of Nobles county. There were at least one thousand cattle, sheep, hogs and horses drowned in southwestern Minnesota. The greatest casualties were at Luverne, on the Rock river. Two cloudbursts struck the latter in three hours and the river overflowed the country for miles. Many people were forced to take to trees or the roofs of their houses and a rescuing party was sent out for them from Luverne. The current was so swift that the rescuers were overturned and themselves rescued with great difficulty.

A second party saved 20 or 30 people who were in grave peril. Many business houses were flooded in Luverne. Across the border in South Dakota at least 10,000 acres of grain was ruined by flooding. Several houses and elevators were blown down at the town of Chavel, S. D.

> PISTOLS AND RAZORS. Bleody Riot at Frankfort Narrowly

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 8.-A bloody riot was narrowly averted Sunday afternoon by the bravery of several private citizens going to the rescue of two policemen. An excusion of 500 Negroes from Louisville came in, and two Negroes on it were fighting when they got off the train. Chief Tobin and Officer Brown grabbed them at once, but were set upon by the other Negroes and knocked down. Ed Callahan, Russell Hughes, Lee Cohen and Tommy Newman, who were standing in a drug store near by, grasped the situation, armed themselves, and started to the Callahan seized a corn knife lying handy, and swinging it about his head, yelled to the crowd to clear the way or get cut. He soon reached the struggling officers. Hughes, who is a muscular young druggist, got a pistol, and, clubbing it, knocked the blacks right and left and following Cohen and Newman mowed his way to Tobin and Brown. They then formed a circle the two arrested Negroes, pointed their pistols at the crowd, and finally landed their prisoners in the lock-up. Meantime nearly every colored visitor, including the women, drew a pistol or a razor, and were struggling to get to the officers. The colored women did more fighting than the men, and atually succeeded in knocking down both the officers and one of the rescuers. Had aid not come so quickly Tobin and Brown would certainly have been beaten to death, and this would have precipitated a regular race war, as the Louisville blacks almost killed Officer Brown's father three years ago, and the feeling then engendered has never died out.
